Audio/Video Router Interface

With this optional software package the system continuously monitors up to two external routing switchers and provides a conference based tracking of your Artist intercom.

A special screen takes care of the external line handling which provides assignments of the incoming communication lines to their on-air video and audio counterparts.

Because the intercom now follows the source selection on your video router only a few keys on your intercom panels are required to talk to a large number of potential destinations.

As a result, smaller keypanels can be used which further improves the ease of use and it saves money at the same time.

Product specifications are subject to change without notice. This material is provided for information purposes only; Riedel assumes no liability related to its use. September 2004.